Founding Declaration of the International Association of Social Protection

THE SIGNATURES BELOW, belonging to various organisations throughout the world dedicated to the study and promotion of Social Protection in their respective countries, understood in the sense expressed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations: Aware that globalisation has deepened social and labour relations between different peoples and nations, both because of the continuous exchange of workers across national borders and because of the major conflicts and catastrophes of all kinds that afflict the regions of the world, and because of the intense penetration of digital relations in trade and labour; Attentive to the various mechanisms of coordination between national systems that preserve and improve the rights of international citizens, especially migrant, posted and frontier workers; Aware of the diversity of the respective social protection systems that protect their fellow citizens in the event of misfortune due to social risks, and which affect not only the levels or intensities of protection, but also the financing formulas and the public or private character of the respective systems; In view of the fact that a better knowledge of all national systems can lead to better communication and protection for the citizens, and in the first place for the workers of each country, by facilitating the solution of the problems which may arise and the response to the gaps in protection; And convinced that the discussion of the differences and the formulas used by each country to solve its problems will lead to the improvement of the respective legislation and to the solution of their problems by means of jurisprudence,

Proceed to establish the International Social Protection Association for the study, discussion and resolution of the differences between the various nations in protecting citizens against social misfortunes by means of contributory or non-contributory insurance and social assistance, as well as of the various mechanisms of co-ordination and preservation of such rights in transit between various countries.
